During World War II, the Nazi Party banned a wide variety of art, literature, and music ranging from instrumental and chamber pieces to symphonies, operas, and jazz. Musical works by Jewish and leftist composers were censored, along with pieces that conflicted with Nazi ideology or the German romantic myths central to the aesthetic of National Socialism. As a result, the Nazis promoted the music of Richard Wagner and Anton Bruckner while suppressing works by modernist composers such as Paul Hindemith. A writer from the Deutsche Zeitung wrote disparagingly of Hindemith after seeing a performance of his Mathas der Maler symphony, stating that his “musical products were thoroughly at home in an atmosphere characterized by the names Alban Berg, Arthur Honegger, Bela Bartok, and the quarter-tone mixer Alois Haba.” Before taking power, the Nazis rioted after a 1928 performance of Ernst Krenek’s opera Jonny spielt auf in Vienna. Not only did Krenek’s work contain jazz compositions, but its artistic thesis was that the jazz traditions developed by African American musicians were the rightful heir to dying European musical traditions. The National Socialists used the term “degenerate art” to describe nearly every innovative feature in 20th-century music. Ironically, many of the 20th-century composers working in the German romantic tradition—the official aesthetic of the Nazi Party—were Jewish; others had ties to socialist political parties. As a result, the Nazis suppressed a great deal of music that sounded exactly the way they believed music should sound. Thus they upheld Wagner and Bruckner as musical ideals while censoring the Wagnerian operas of Erich Wolfgang Korngold and his mentor Alexander von Zemlinsky and Mahler’s symphonic works, which were the direct musical descendants of Bruckner’s compositions. In addition to banning the works of these Jewish composers, the Nazis banned the Wagnerian operas of Franz Schreker because of his leftist politics. In addition, the National Socialists outlawed public performances of musical works by 19th century Jewish composers from the German romantic tradition, including Felix Mendelssohn, Giacomo Meyerbeer, and Jacques Offenbach.
Los Angeles Opera: The Stigmatized

As part of the Experience L.A. series of events, the L.A. Opera performs The Stigmatized, the first-ever production in the Western hemisphere of an opera by Franz Schreker (1878-1934), whose work was suppressed in Nazi Germany.

Last Updated: May 18, 2010

URL: http://libguides.usc.edu/stigmatized

Further Reading

- The Twisted Muse: Musicians and Their Music in the Third Reich
  By Michael H. Kater
  Oxford University Press, 1997
  Grand Library
  ML275.5.K38 1997

- Music in the Third Reich
  By Erik Levi
  St. Martin's Press, 1994
  Music Library
  ML275.5.L49 1994

- The Politics of Music in the Third Reich
  By Michael Meyer
  P. Lang, 1991
  Music Library
  ML275.5 M49 1991

- Symphonic Aspirations: German Music and Politics, 1900-1945
  By Karen Painter
  Music Library
  ML275.5.P35 2007

- Most German of the Arts: Musicology and Society from the Weimer Republic to the End of Hitler's Reich
  By Pamela Maxine Potter
  Yale University Press, 1998
  Music Library
  ML397.P67 1998
Los Angeles Opera: The Stigmatized

As part of the Experience L.A. series of events, the L.A. Opera performs The Stigmatized, the first-ever production in the Western hemisphere of an opera by Franz Schreker (1878-1934), whose work was suppressed in Nazi Germany.

Recordings by Schreker and Other Banned Composers

Opera Recordings by Franz Schreker

Die feme Klang (Naxos, 1989)
By Franz Schreker
Music Library 9256mus

Die Gezeichneten (or The Stigmatized) (Marco Polo, 1990)
By Franz Schreker
Music Library 5216mus

Irrelohe (Sony, 1995)
By Franz Schreker
Music Library 7132mus

Der Schatzgräber (Capriccio, 1989)
By Franz Schreker
Music Library 4810mus

Recordings by Other Banned Composers

Die Voegel (Decca, 1996)
By Walter Braunfels
Music Library 8018mus

Die tote Stadt (Orfeo, 2004)
By Erich Wolfgang Korngold
Music Library 12601mus

Jonny spielt auf (Decca, 1993)
By Ernst Krenek
Music Library 6189mus
Der Zwerg (EMI, 1996)
By Alexander von Zemlinsky

Music Library 7650mus

The Braunfels and Krenek recordings are part of the Decca series Entartete Musik, which preserves compositions labeled “degenerate music” by the Nazis.

Comments (0)