Thai writing derives from a South Indian script that came to Southeast Asia 1600 or more years ago. It is phonetic, consisting of 42 consonants and 31 vowels. Armenian writing was adapted from the Greek alphabet at roughly the same time and consists of 31 consonants and 7 vowels. Comparisons of the two are rarely made, but in Los Angeles, where Thai Town and Little Armenia overlap along Hollywood Blvd., it is possible to see signs in Thai next to signs in Armenian.

Thai Town: A Culinary and Historical Tour

Participation in this Visions & Voices events is available to students through a lottery. Sign up for the drawing begins September 29th. See Details.

Los Angeles can now lay claim to having the largest concentration of Thais outside of Thailand itself. The community's business and cultural center is Thai Town, several blocks along Hollywood Blvd.–in East Hollywood. Here, Angelenos transplanted from Thailand, their children and grandchildren, can see signs written in the unique Thai alphabet, hear Thai spoken–and sung–and enjoy the tastes and scents of their homeland. It is also a place where non-Thais can find help in acculturating themselves to the global city that LA is ever in the process of becoming.

2011 Hollywood Thai Town Songkran Festival

Click here for Songkran video.

Related Research Guides

Asian American Studies
Los Angeles and Southern California
American Studies and Ethnicity

Powered by Springshare; All rights reserved. Report a tech support issue. View this page in a format suitable for printers and screen-readers or mobile devices.
Thai Town's Not Just for Thais

Thai, Indian, Armenian, and Salvadoran businesses share a building

Comments (0)

Panos Bakery

5150 Hollywood Blvd

Armenian, Middle Eastern, and European desserts

Comments (0)

Thai Town Plaza

5321 Hollywood Blvd.

Comments (0)

Nuch Royal Thai Spa

5300 Hollywood Blvd. (323) 461-4400

Comments (0)

Siam Book Center

5178 Hollywood Blvd. (323) 665-4236

Comments (0)

Visions & Voices walking tour of Thai Town takes place on Saturday, October 22nd, between 9:45 am and 2 pm. Sign up early, as space is limited.
Getting there - Visions & Voices: Thai Town: A Culinary and Historical Tour

Metro Bus and Rail Service

If the Metro Rail Service is convenient for you, the most convenient station for Thai Town is at Hollywood and Western on the Metro Red Line. It's a short walk from there to restaurants and shops. Routes, fares and schedules can be seen at the LA Metro Home website. If you use the Trip Planner on that site, you can enter "University of Southern California" and "Hollywood Western Station" as points of departure and arrival and you will see several alternative routes.

By Car

Driving from campus to Thai Town is pretty simple. From campus, you can drive north on Vermont Street to Hollywood Blvd. Turn left, drive past Normandie and look for parking.