

JUST FOOD AND FAIR FOOD: A Multidisciplinary Exploration

USC LIBRARIES RESOURCE GUIDE

Friday, March 1, 2013, Doheny Memorial Library

Writers, policymakers and activists have examined important issues concerning food safety, environmental sustainability and the health costs of processed, industrially produced food. But much of this discussion has assumed an affluent consumer, one with bountiful choices for good food. The question of just and fair food—the ready availability of fresh, wholesome, equitably produced, affordable food to all people, regardless of income or place of residence and especially in urban areas populated by people of color with low incomes—has received far less attention. This event brings together scholars, policy analysts, activists and food providers to examine these issues on national, regional and local levels.

RITA ROMERO, CHIMENE TUCKER and SUE TYSON of the USC Libraries have selected the following resources to help you learn more about the issues discussed at today's event. Consult the online version of this guide at libguides.usc.edu/just_food for many more resources, including links to relevant e-books in the USC Libraries' collections.
